A female panda named Yuan Yuan delivered a baby panda Yuan Zai at Taipei Zoo two weeks ago. Since birth, the panda cub has enjoyed high popularity and drawn massive attention to the plight of this endangered species which, without the help of humans, might be extinct in a short period of time.

Pandas are becoming endangered with human intervention into their way of life. Giant pandas once lived in lowland areas, but farming, forest clearing, and other development by humans restrict giant pandas to the mountains. Their natural habitat is being taken over, and their source of food, bamboo, is being chopped down by people.

Another reason is the giant pandas' naturally slow breeding rate. Female pandas usually have only one or rarely two cubs and the death rate of the cubs is quite high. Sometimes zoos will remove the cub(s) from the mother to increase the chance of survival. Even so, a female panda can have only four to five cubs in her lifetime. Scientists reported that the number of pandas living in the wild may have been estimated at about 1,000 in 2006. The population of pandas in the wild continues to decline definitely. The only hope for the panda and other endangered animals like it is help from people.

31. Which of the following is true?
- (A) Humans and pandas have shared the land peacefully.
  - (B) A female panda can give birth to 4 to 5 cubs every year.
  - (C) People in Taiwan weren't interested in the birth of the baby panda.
  - (D) The bamboo is the primary source of food for a giant panda.
32. What is the main idea of the passage?
- (A) The Taipei Zoo is celebrating the birth of the baby panda.
  - (B) Humans have killed animals for thousands of years and they have recently begun to kill pandas.
  - (C) Human intervention and the panda's low birthrate are two contributing factors for the decline of panda population.
  - (D) To save the lovely endangered species, teenage students don't get much to do at the moment.
33. Which of the following word has the opposite meaning of "endangered" in the first paragraph?
- (A) safe
  - (B) threatened
  - (C) scared
  - (D) lovely
34. From the passage, we can assume that _____.
- (A) there are more plants alive than animals today
  - (B) there are more and more endangered animals
  - (C) people hate giant pandas
  - (D) the panda needs help from humans so that it won't become extinct
35. What do the zoo keepers do to protect the baby panda from dying?
- (A) They put up a camera to monitor the mother panda.
  - (B) They double the amount of the bamboo for the mother panda.
  - (C) They take the baby panda away from its mother.
  - (D) We can't find any information from the article.

If you could travel in time, where would you go?

Perhaps you would watch an original performance of a Shakespearean play in Elizabethan England? What about hanging out with Laozi in the Spring and Autumn Period? Or maybe you'd voyage far ahead of the present day to see what the future holds. The possibility of time travel is indeed tantalizing. Stories exploring the subject have been around for hundreds of years. Perhaps the best-known example is science fiction novel The Time Machine, written by H.G. Wells in 1895, about a device that transports people into the far future purposefully and selectively.

Time travel is the concept of moving between different points in time in a manner the same as moving between different points in space. Travelers can move backward or forward in time earlier or later than the starting point.

But could time travel actually be possible?

Some theories suggest that special types of motion in space might allow time travel into the past and future, in theory. Based on Einstein's theory of relativity, scientists propose using cracks in time and space called "wormholes," which could be used as shortcuts to other periods. And British physicist Stephen Hawking says you could travel into the future with a really fast spaceship – going at nearly the speed of light. Building such a spaceship, though, would of course be no simple task.

Even if you could travel into the past, there is something called the "grandfather paradox." The paradox is described as follows: time travelers go back in time and kill their own grandfather, and therefore prevent themselves from being born. Nevertheless, if a time traveler wasn't born, how would he travel back in time?

And would you really like to visit the future? In H.G. Wells' book, the main character travels into the future roughly 30 million years from his own time where he sees some of the last living thing on a dying Earth, reddish crab-like creatures wandering the blood-like beaches. If that's what's in store, maybe we had better just live in the present day after all.

36. What is the passage mainly about?
- (A) Reasons for the popular concept of time travel in fictions.
 (B) How to learn history and physics well at the same time.
 (C) The possibility and the potential risk of time travel.
 (D) What the world would be like in the far future.
37. According to the passage, which of the following statements is true?
- (A) Time travel means to travel between different points in distance.
 (B) The grandfather paradox says time travel is impossible because your grandfather could kill you.
 (C) H.G. Wells' time traveler goes back to 30 million years ago and sees a crab wandering on the beach.
 (D) A time machine appears in a novel written by H.G. Wells.
38. Which of the following words could best be used to replace "tantalizing"?
- (A) rewarding (B) tempting
 (C) imaginary (D) teasing
39. According to the passage, what is the term given to the shortcuts through space and time that might be possibly used for time travel?
- (A) Einstein's theory of relativity. (B) Wormholes.
 (C) The speed of light. (D) A time machine.

40. We may infer from the author's tone that this passage is supposed to be written to _____.
- (A) raise funds for time traveling project
  - (B) tell a story about how he traveled through time
  - (C) make an experiment with spaceship
  - (D) share information about time traveling
