In some countries, gardening is becoming popular again. Now, gardening is not for people who have a yard only. In fact, people who live in cities can also have a chance to enjoy the fun of gardening. They can grow vegetables or plants on the roof of their apartment, on balconies(陽台), or anywhere with a little space.

Although most people start urban gardening just for fun, they end up getting more benefits than they can have imagined. By growing organic fruit and vegetables, for example, they can avoid eating harmful drugs or substances that some farmers use to grow plants. The organic produce can even be sold to make some money. As for the environment, gardens on the roof help keep the building cool, reducing the need of air-conditioning (空調). What’s more, studies have shown that growing plants indoors can make the indoor air cleaner and fresher.

So, why not try your hand at urban farming? You could start with something simple like growing herbs (藥草) on your balcony. It’s a lot easier than you think.

- 4 4 . In the first paragraph, the word “They” refers to _____.
 (A) many countries
 (B) vegetables or plants
 (C) people who have a yard
 (D) people who live in crowded cities

- 4 5 . In the second paragraph, the term “urban gardening” means _____.
 (A) having a yard in the countryside
 (B) growing plants in big cities
 (C) buying organic food
 (D) reducing air pollution

- 4 6 . According to the passage, which of the following is NOT one of the benefits of urban gardening?
 (A) It is cheaper to buy organic produce in the city than in the countryside.
 (B) Growing plants on the roof keeps the building cool.
 (C) People have fun growing herbs on balconies.
 (D) People can enjoy clean and fresh air in their houses by growing plants indoors.

- 4 7 . According to the passage, which of the following is true?
 (A) Before you start urban gardening, you need to take lessons about it.
 (B) Gardening is no longer popular all over the world.
 (C) Even a little space is good for growing plants.
 (D) People in cities cannot enjoy the fun of gardening.
