三、閱讀測驗(每題 2 分)

I. Taiwan had been controlled by Japan for 50 years between 1895 and 1945, and it was longer than any other part of East Asia. One might think that hostility toward Japan would run deeper in Taiwan than anywhere else. Strangely, though, it is almost the exact opposite .

In 2005, a Japanese history textbook conflict was among East Asian countries, from China to Korea. Something about World War II that was written in the textbook was untrue. In Taiwan, however, there was much less anger at the Japanese.

While the Taiwanese know that some very bad things happened in their country under Japanese rule, they also see something very good, too. Some Taiwanese believe that their country is wealthy today partly because of the changes made during the Japanese rule. Many important building works were completed, like Yoichi Hatta's Chianan Canal. These works later helped Taiwan's economy grow fast.

5 1 . What is the main idea of the passage?

- (A) Taiwan's mixed feelings about the history of Japanese rule.
- (B) The comparison between Taiwan's building works and Japan's
- (C) Taiwan's economy growth after 1945.
- (D) Japan's history of ruling other East Asian countries.

5 2 . The word "hostility" in the first paragraph is closest in meaning to _____.

- (A) guilt
- (B) treatment
- (C) failure
- (D) anger

5 3 . What happened in 2005 when a Japanese textbook mentioned the history of Japan?

- (A) It resulted in anger in many East Asian countries.
- (B) Koreans felt less angry than any other Asians because of its relations with Japan.
- (C) Taiwanese people were so angry that they stopped buying Japanese products.
- (D) China started a war with Japan because of this.

5 4 . According to the passage, Taiwan's attitude toward their history of Japanese rule is _____.

- (A) all positive
- (B) all negative
- (C) both positive and negative
- (D) none of the above

II. Although Taiwan and Japan are near to each other on the globe, they can be very different culturally.

It is said that Taiwanese people are more carefree in comparison with the Japanese. For example, Japanese people usually do not call a person's first name when they meet the person for the first time. In addition, they seldom talk about what a person wears or offer suggestions to an acquaintance. However, doing those things is normal for Taiwanese people. Moreover, most Taiwanese people walk without paying attention to others around them, while in Japan, people walk quickly and carefully in order not to be in others' way.

Other cultural differences can be found in eating habits. In Taiwan, for instance, people like to eat while they are walking. However, Japanese people don't do that. Also, there are many night markets in Taiwan, and local foods and snacks are available all year round in these night markets. However, in Japan, places like these are only open a few days at a time for certain festivals or celebrations.

It seems that the things people see and experience every day can be very different from those in another country, even the one that is so close on a map.

5 5 . According to the passage, when Japanese people meet a person for the first time, they do

NOT _____.

- (A) talk to him or her
- (B) smile at him or her
- (C) pay attention to him or her
- (D) call his or her first name

5 6 . The word they in the second paragraph refers to _____.

- (A) Japanese people
- (B) Taiwanese people
- (C) people who are more carefree
- (D) people who like to offer suggestions

5 7 . According to the passage, Taiwanese people _____ when they are walking.

- (A) seldom talk
- (B) like to eat
- (C) are careful not to be in others' way
- (D) pay attention to others around them

5 8 . According to the passage, which of the following is NOT true?

- (A) Night markets in Japan are only open for certain festivals or celebrations.
- (B) People can taste local foods and snacks at Taiwan's night markets.
- (C) Night markets in Taiwan are open all year round.
- (D) No night markets can be found in Japan

3. Although Taiwan and Japan are near to each other on the globe , they can be very different culturally.

It is said that Taiwanese people are more carefree in comparison with the Japanese. For example, Japanese people usually do not call a person's first name when they meet the person for the first time. In addition, they seldom talk about what a person wears or offer suggestions to an acquaintance . However, doing those things is normal for Taiwanese people. Moreover, most Taiwanese people walk without paying attention to others around them, while in Japan, people walk quickly and carefully in order not to be in others' way.

Other cultural differences can be found in eating habits. In Taiwan, for instance, people like to eat while they are walking. However, Japanese people don't do that. Also, there are many night markets in Taiwan, and local foods and snacks are available all year round in these night markets. However, in Japan, places like these are only open a few days at a time for certain festivals or celebrations.

It seems that the things people see and experience every day can be very different from those in another country, even the one that is so close on a map.

1. Taiwan had been controlled by Japan for 50 years between 1895 and 1945, and it was longer than any other part of East Asia. One might think that hostility toward Japan would run deeper in Taiwan than anywhere else. Strangely, though, it is almost the exact opposite (相反).

In 2005, a Japanese history textbook conflict was among East Asian countries, from China to Korea. Something about World War II that was written in the textbook was untrue. In Taiwan, however, there was much less anger at the Japanese.

While the Taiwanese know that some very bad things happened in their country under Japanese rule, they also see something very good, too. Some Taiwanese believe that their country is wealthy (富裕的) today partly because of the changes made during the Japanese rule. Many important building works were completed, like Yoichi Hatta's Chianan Canal (嘉南大圳). These works later helped Taiwan's economy grow fast.

- (1) ( ) What is the main idea of the passage?
 (A) Taiwan's mixed feelings about the history of Japanese rule.
 (B) The comparison between Taiwan's building works and Japan's
 (C) Taiwan's economy growth after 1945.
 (D) Japan's history of ruling other East Asian countries.
 (2) ( ) According to the passage, which of the following about the history of Japan's rule over Asia is NOT true?
 (A) Taiwan had less negative (負面的) feelings toward the history of Japanese rule.
 (B) Taiwan had been ruled by the Japanese for fifty years.
 (C) Taiwan was part of Japan before 1895.
 (D) Taiwan was the one that Japan had ruled for the longest time in East Asia.
 (3) ( ) The word "hostility" in the first paragraph is closest in meaning to _____.
